Bagel (a male so named because his tail is shaped like a bagel), whom I haven't seen lately, came back and is now shaped like a barrel. I think that, when it comes to animals, the fatter and furrier they are, the cuter they are. If I was an animal, I would be pretty cute, but regrettably, I am a human.

Honorifics Explained

In this manga book, you will find Japanese honorifics left intact in the translations. For those not familiar with how the Japanese use honorifics and, more important, how they differ from American honorifics, we present this brief overview.

Politeness has always been a critical facet of Japanese culture. Ever since the feudal era, when Japan was a highly stratified society, use of honorifics—which can be defined as polite speech that indicates relationship or status—has played an essential role in the Japanese language. When addressing someone in Japanese, an honorific usually takes the form of a suffix attached to one's name (example: "Asuna-san"), is used as a title at the end of one's name, or appears in place of the name itself (example: "Negi-sensei," or simply "Sensei!").

Honorifics can be expressions of respect or endearment. In the context of manga and anime, honorifics give insight into the nature of the relationship between characters. Many English translations leave out these important honorifics and therefore distort the feel of the original Japanese. Because Japanese honorifics contain nuances that English honorifics lack, it is our policy not to translate them. Here, instead, is a guide to some of the honorifics you may encounter in our manga.

-san: This is the most common honorific and is equivalent to Mr., Miss, Ms., Mrs. It is the all-purpose honorific and can be used in any situation where politeness is required.

-sama: This is one level higher than "-san" and is used to confer great respect.

-dono: This comes from the word "tono," which means "lord." It is an even higher level than "-sama" and confers utmost respect.

-kun: This suffix is used at the end of boys' names to express familiarity or endearment. It is also sometimes used by men among friends, or when addressing someone younger or of a lower station.

-chan: This is used to express endearment, mostly toward girls. It is also used for little boys, pets, and even among lovers. It gives a sense of childish cuteness.

Bozu: This is an informal way to refer to a boy, similar to the English terms "kid" and "squirt."

Sempai/Senpai: This title suggests that the addressee is one's senior in a group or organization. It is most often used in a school setting, where underclassmen refer to their upperclassmen as "sempai." It can also be used in the workplace, such as when a newer employee addresses an employee who has seniority in the company.

Kohai: This is the opposite of "sempai" and is used toward underclassmen in school or newcomers in the workplace. It connotes that the addressee is of a lower station.

Sensei: Literally meaning "one who has come before," this title is used for teachers, doctors, or masters of any profession or art.

-[blank]: This is usually forgotten in these lists, but it is perhaps the most significant difference between Japanese and English. The lack of honorific means that the speaker has permission to address the person in a very intimate way. Usually, only family, spouses, or very close friends have this kind of permission. Known as yobisute, it can be gratifying when someone who has earned the intimacy starts to call one by one's name without an honorific. But when that intimacy hasn't been earned, it can be very insulting.

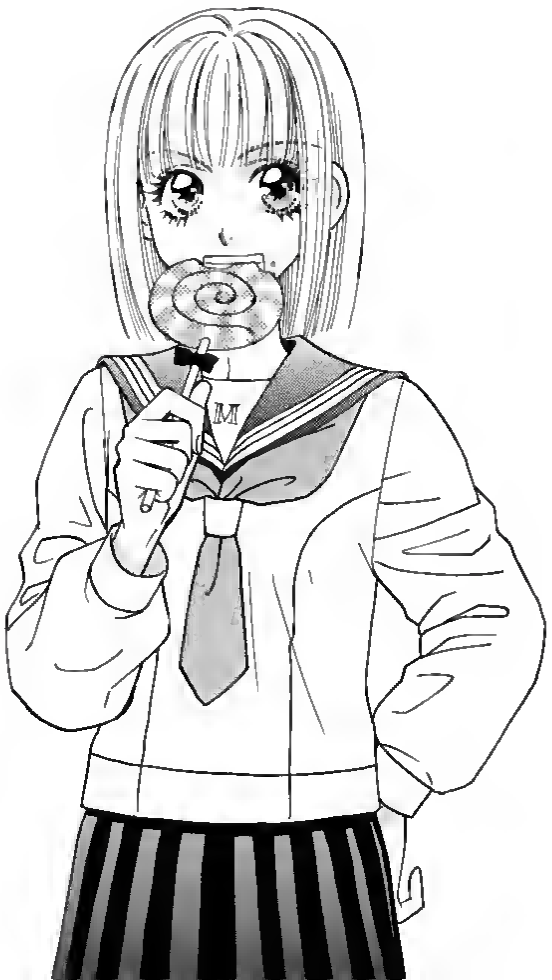
Chapter 13: Exam Study in Hell



Hey, how did you do on the quiz?
All right, I guess.
What? I'm jealous. You're not worried?
I mean, the proficiency tests are at the end of the month. We have to start studying soon.
Ah.
What are you doing, Hana?

AAAAAAAAAAHHH!
What's this?

Science Quiz
Class 1-B, Seat 21, Hana Suzuki
What is this!!?
3) Using examples, explain the difference between the structure of molecular crystals and covalent crystals. (20 points)
Covalent crystals are hard.

How on Earth did you get such an intensely bad score?
I'm shocked you even got into this school!
Well, something had to be done about it.
Yeah.
13 points. It's bad luck.
How mean. You didn't have to tell everyone!
A maiden's secret.
Well, I've used up my savings from when I was taking entrance exams, and I've used up all my drive.
If you don't have the raw talent, put forth more effort!
Are you preparing for your lessons and then reviewing them after!?
I'm tired every day from being forced to go to the club!
Are you blaming your own stupidity on me!?
Stop calling me stupid!

FLINCH
WHOOMP
Shut up! What's wrong with calling a stupid person stup...

Izumi!
Are you okay!?
Natsuki-sempai...
Hana-chan, even if it was a fluke, you did get into this school, so you can do it if you try.

That's not funny.
Come on, Takashi.
Repeating a grade...
So? She can just go through first year again.

But she's sure in trouble.
If she keeps this up, she might not be able to recover after midterms.

I don't really care.
Yeah, well, if it happens, it happens.
If your grades are too bad, they make you stop going to club activities.
Eh!?
But we really do need to do something.
If we all work together, we can do it!
For now, she has a goal.
It's almost time for the proficiency tests. It's perfect timing.
No!!
Hey, Hana. Starting today, you're studying.
Eeehhh~~?
Hey, Takashi. You, too. Got it?
Well, it does make me uncomfortable to have a stupid person so nearby.
Can't be helped.

First of all, try this quiz again.
Ergh...
If you get red marks at midterms and finals, you'll have to take supplementary lessons—you'll have even less time to sleep.
You haven't even tried yet—what's with the pessimistic attitude!!?
Eehh? I only have a week. There's no possible way.

How very brave.
Hana-chan, you're so manly...

Shut up! At least review the problems you missed after the quiz!
I don't know the answer!!
That hurt! You don't have to hit me!
Understand? Your goal is to get an average score!
We'll whip you into shape to make up for all your slacking up to now!!
Step one: You have to look the part.

Here, tell me what you don't understand.
I don't even know what I don't understand.

Um, Takashi...
Listen, Suzuki. Split the pencil in half lengthwise, curl up a cheat sheet, and put it in the middle...
Izumi-sempai! Hang in there!

Yes, sir.
Déjà vu.

There is absolutely no way she'll get an average score!!
We'll have to start with the basics.
For now, learn these by tomorrow.
Eeehhh?
Wrong!

Why did it have to turn out like this?
We managed to make plans to see them again on Sunday, but...
Yes, they are!!
What's your problem? They're not that different from each other.

They don't look anything alike!
What the heck were you looking at!?
Really?
Rin-chan is more laid back, while Ran-chan is more spaced out.
And Ran-chan's face is cuter.
No, Rin-chan's is!
They really aren't that different, are they?
No.
We don't have the same taste in girls at all!

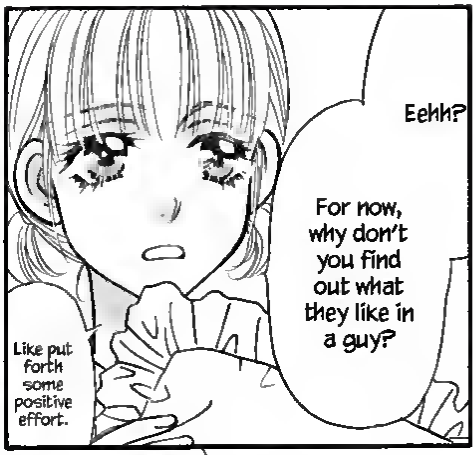
Oh, what should we do?
Hey, Hana-chan, what do you think?
Might as well get a girl's opinion.



Eehh?
For now, why don't you find out what they like in a guy?
Like put forth some positive effort.

I don't want to hear that from you, Izumi-sempai!
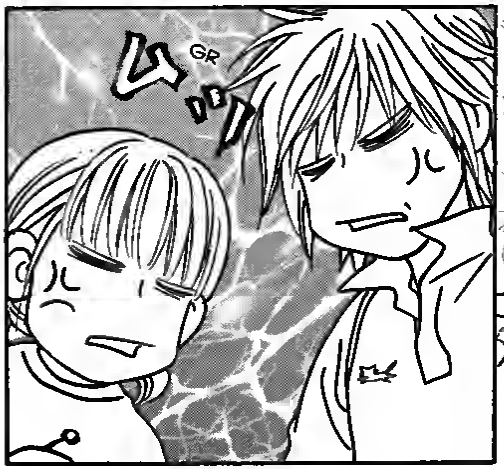
No, well, looking at you, you don't seem to have any talent in that field.



GR

What's that supposed to mean?
I thought it would be pointless asking Hana-chan, but now I'm glad we did!
Oohh, I get it!

Izumi-sempai!
All right. We'll pitch in help the twins out one more time.
She's right. It's not uncommon to talk to someone and find out they're different than your first impression.

What will we do, Ran-chan?
My mind is so full thinking about Sunday that I haven't made any progress on my manuscript for the literature club.
I know, sister. This is the first time we've met men outside, after all.
PERK
Mm.

We only ever stay at home, reading books.

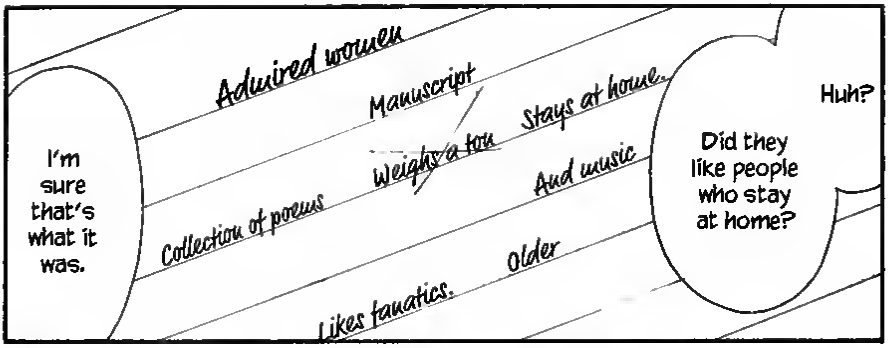
I wonder what we should wear.
Stay at home.
They like people who devote themselves to one thing.
Yes.
Say, why not look at some dresses on the way home?
Then, may we stop by the music shop, as well? There is some sheet music I want.
All right, this should do it!
Phew. I'm glad that went faster than I expected.
I really do prefer my life.
Their taste in men is completely opposite... there.
But it's good that we have completely different taste in men, isn't it?
Tee hee hee.



Judging from all of this, let's see...
It's hard to read like this. I'll have to sum up.
Probably.
Come to think of it, I think the younger one said she likes curly hair.

Excellent, Hana! You've done well!
Eh heh heh. Sure thing!
Thank you, Hana-chan! We'll do our best!!
I think.
I worked really hard and gathered the perfect information, so you'll be absolutely okay!
Not to worry!
We don't know anything about those—
But Akiba-type and minstrels, huh?

So, what's this...?
We couldn't get permission to light fires in the classroom, so no.
H-hey.
Did we use real fire to make fireballs?

Aahh!
DAAAAAAHHH
Wai...! I-I can't move!!
.....
Eep.
We found Oda-sempai!
Ah! There he is!
It's Oda-kun!
TURN

キャ kyaaaaahhh!
DO
It's him! It's really him!
Oda-sempai, I love you!
DOH

Help me!!

Now I have no more regrets.
I'm so happy.
For the first time ever, I've been held by a man.
Eh?
J-just a...
Oda-sempai, I love you!
Please love me, too! Kyaaaa!

I'm done for.
Dad, Mom, please forgive me for dying before you.

Shut. up.
ZZZZZZZZZ
Yes, ma'am...

Huh? Why are there so many candied chestnuts?
Eh. ♡
It's yours, Hana. You can eat all of it.
Cheep
Cheep.
Cheep
Cheep.
It's nothing.
It's just that there was lots of it, so I bought a bunch.
What is this, all of a sudden?
You took it from me the other day.

But the suspension bridge plan was a failure, huh?
I guess we couldn't expect it to go that well.
I was kind of asleep.
Don't eat it all at once.
Yay! Thank you so much, Izumi-sempai!
Here, you can have one!
I don't need a girlfriend right now!
Living girls are scarier than ghosts!!
It seems I missed a lot.
But I'm sorry I couldn't help you.
Partway through the Bunkasai, I don't remember anything that happened after.
Did I fall asleep like Suzuki?
Cheep.
Cheep.
We took pictures, so I'll give you copies once they're printed.
Maybe you were tired because you're not used to taking care of Wacky?

You're spilling, you're spilling!
Aahh, Izumi!
What was that!?
BAAAM
Don't you think taking care of Izumi-sempai is harder than taking care of Wacky?
Mm-hm.
I'm always telling you to use scissors so you don't get it all over the place!
I know, I know.
See, there's another one over there.
KWAH!
Wacky.

(Eyesight: right 0.02, left 0.03)
*right 20/1000, left 20/1500

◀ Because he plays the part of Izumi's jiya, he makes dad jokes in spite of himself.

▲ Hana's arch-nemesis, Takashi Itoigawa! He's a man of firm character, but he also has a big attitude.

◀ Be it a habu snake or Wacky the chick... he has a connection to animals.

Translation Notes

Japanese is a tricky language for most Westerners, and translation is often more art than science. For your edification and reading pleasure, here are notes on some of the places where we could have gone in a different direction in our translation of the work, or where a Japanese cultural reference is used.

JAL, page 10

JAL is a common abbreviation for Japan Airlines.

A jellied sweet made from bean paste.

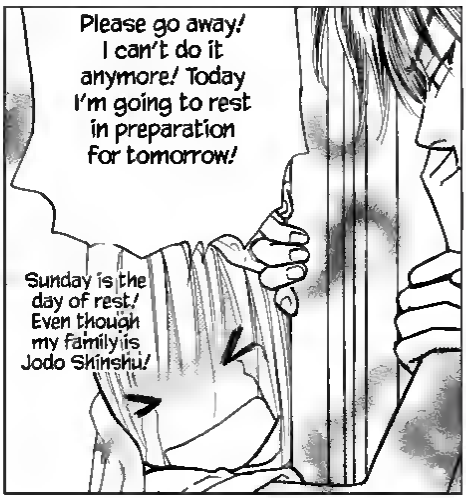
The most common religions in Japan are Shinto and Buddhism, and Jodo Shinshu is considered the most widely practiced sect of Buddhism in Japan. Sunday being the day of rest is a Christian practice, and so would not apply to Hana's family's beliefs.



Please go away! I can't do it anymore! Today I'm going to rest in preparation for tomorrow!
Sunday is the day of rest! Even though my family is Jodo Shinshu!

Kind of like the peanut butter and jelly sandwich of Japan. Onigiri literally means "molded" and refers to the fact that this dish is made by molding rice into an oval or triangle shape. Put a salty or sour ingredient in the middle, like a pickled plum or salted salmon, wrap some seaweed around it, and you have a very popular Japanese snack.

Running with bread in your mouth, page 54

Further proof that Izumi is not only a little nuts, but that he watches too much TV. It's an old anime cliché: The show would begin with a character running late to school, holding toast in his mouth because he didn't have time to eat breakfast. Then the character inevitably bumps into someone special, which is usually the start of something big enough to make a whole TV series about.

What are you saying? Everyone knows you crash into her from around the corner with bread in your mouth!
Will this really work?

Hana's awkward request, page 69

In Japanese, there are several levels of language that indicate politeness. Hana sounds so awkward because she's trying to use a polite form of the language, but her manners are so unpracticed that she's struggling.

A guy?, page 69

Hana wonders if Masumi is actually a guy, because Masumi used the masculine first-person pronoun boku in referring to herself.

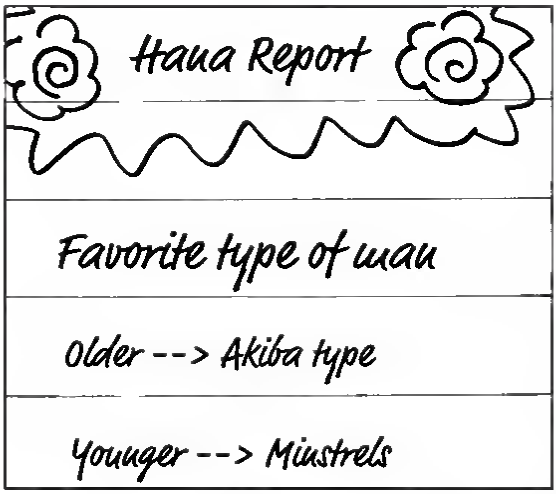
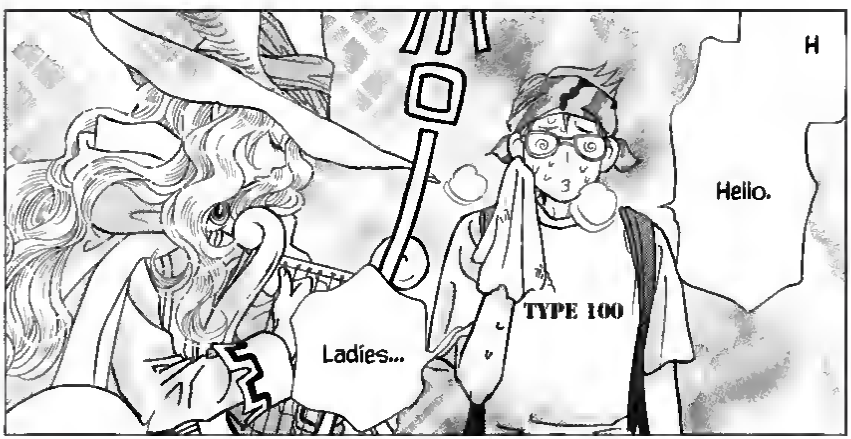
"Oneesama" is a very respectful way of referring to your older sister, or someone you respect like an older sister.

Weighs a ton/Stays at home, page 74

Hana first writes "weighs a ton," then crosses it out and replaces it with "stays at home." She made a mistake in writing down the kanji, so that her first attempt meant something more like "prone to chubbiness."



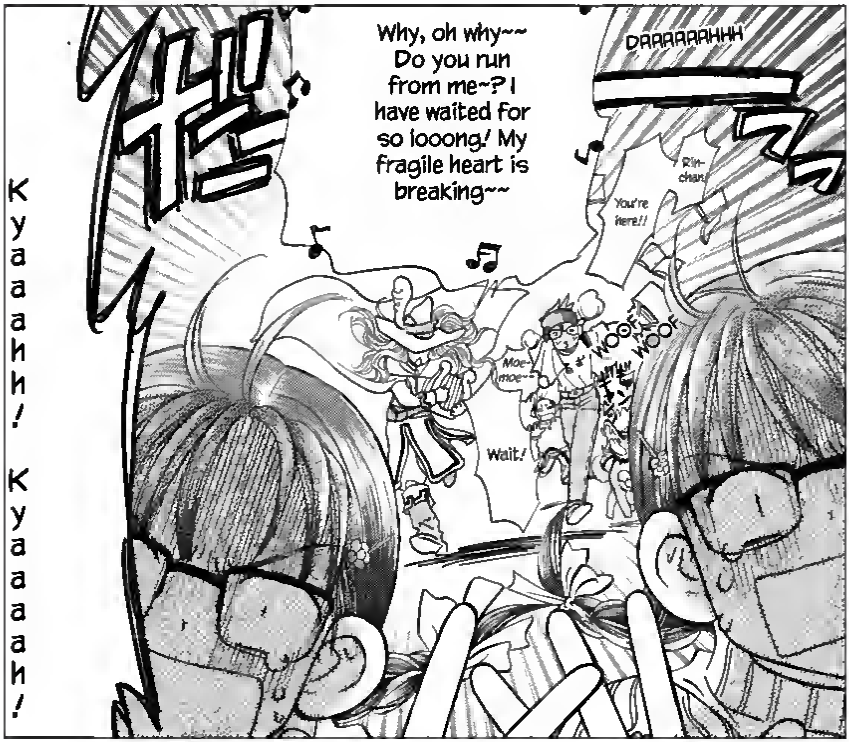
Akiba type, page 74
Akiba is short for Akihabara, a district in Tokyo known for selling lots of computer and electronic goods, but also for selling a lot of anime and otaku goods. An "Akiba type" is the kind of guy who would frequent Akihabara—in other words, the ultimate fanboy.



Type 100, page 82
Type 100 is a type of Gundam piloted by Char Aznoble, the most infamous villain in the history of the Gundam series.

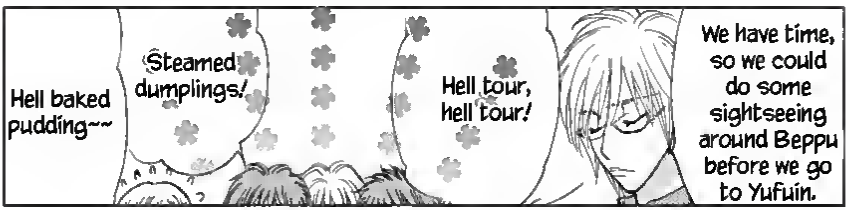
Moe moe, page 83

Moe is a phrase used by fanboys to describe the type of character from an anime or video game that they have a particular attraction to. Moe moe is an emphatic way of saying that someone is just his type.



Hell tour, page 90

Beppu, where the Hockey Club is currently visiting, is the hot spring capital of Japan and has nine major geothermal hot spots, known as the "nine hells of Beppu" probably because they're so hot. If you toured them all, you would be going on a "hell tour."



Hell baked pudding~~
Steamed dumplings!
Hell tour, hell tour!
We have time, so we could do some sightseeing around Beppu before we go to Yufuin.

Steamed dumplings, hell-baked pudding, and hot springs egg, page 90

The water in the hot springs at Beppu is so hot it is used to cook various delicacies, either with the steam or by boiling. In the case of the pudding, it is put in a covered pan and cooked.

Local oyako-don ♡
Me too. ♡
Ah! Guys!
I'm interested in this roll cake!
This nama tofu looks good.
Then, we're off to see the sights. Good luck.
Sunsuru Yufuin, Beppu

Nama tofu and oyako-don, page 98

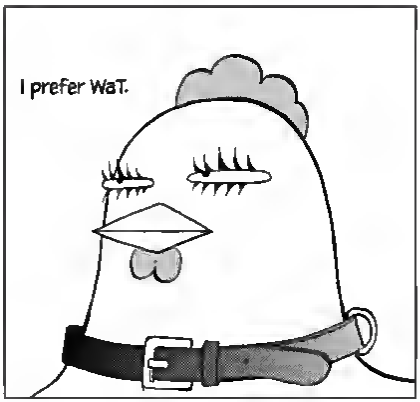
Nama tofu is fresh, cold tofu. Oyako literally means "parent and child," and oyako-don gets its name from having chicken (the parent) and egg (the child) in a bowl of rice.

WaT, page 101

WaT stands for "Wentz and Teppei." They are the Japanese pop duo Eiji Wentz and Teppei Koike. Clearly, Elisabetta has a crush on Koike-san, who is about 5'6".



Natural monument, page 106

The rooster that Izumi had brought over is so rare and beautiful that it is protected by law as a natural monument or treasure.

Haori, page 110

A short, kimono-like coat worn over a long kimono.

Dom Pérignon, page 110

A very expensive brand of champagne.

Maruwa is a high-class supermarket chain in southern Japan.

H-here! We have some candied chestnuts to snack on. I'll make some tea.
From Maruwa!
I did.
You should have said something!
Oh, you're here, Izumi.
Papa
Papa.

Bunkasai, page 137

A bunkasai, or culture festival, is held every year by schools in Japan. Students all work together to create attractions, put on plays, and/or sell food.

PoXXmon, page 139

It's a common practice in Japanese editions of manga to partially censor the titles of copyrighted material. You can probably guess what "PoXXmon" stands for!

Miai, page 139

A miai is a formal interview to arrange a marriage, during which the man and woman in question decide whether or not the other party would be a suitable spouse. Usually, the man and woman in question have not met before, but extensive research has been done on both sides.

Konnyaku, page 142
Jelly made from a pressed vegetable.

Kappa, page 148
A kappa is a Japanese water demon that lurks in rivers and lakes, performing all sorts of misdeeds ranging from looking up women's kimonos to eating children.

Wondering about your feet, page 154
According to Japanese legend, ghosts don't have feet.

Yamato Nadeshiko, page 169
The term yamato nadeshiko, the name of the Japanese pink flower, has come to refer to a woman who displays all the traditional feminine virtues of old Japan.

Jiya, page 169
A jiya is an elderly servant, kind of like a nanny but male.
